

Dearest Friends,

As we gather to celebrate the 14th anniversary of the founding of our unique and beloved Principality of Kaharagia, my heart is filled with profound pride and gratitude. Fourteen years ago, driven by a deep dissatisfaction with the American republic and a yearning for a better way, I established Kaharagia. Today, as we reflect on our journey, I am more convinced than ever of the rightness of that choice.

The current political climate in the United States and around the world serves as a stark reminder of why we chose this path. The left and the right have become entrenched in opinions that alienate rather than unite, failing to promote the diversity that should be the cornerstone of any great nation. It is a landscape where the voices of many are drowned out by the divisive rhetoric of a few, leaving little room for celebrating our shared humanity.

In contrast, the Principality of Kaharagia stands as a beacon of hope and unity, united by our shared values and culture. Our ultimate goal has always been to create a country where Kaharagians live in harmony, supporting one another, and celebrating our nation as a collective whole. Here, we are not defined by political parties but by our shared values, our culture, and our unwavering commitment to each other. Our celebrations are not marred by division, but are joyous occasions that reflect the strength and unity of our community.

Looking ahead to 2025, we have much to anticipate as we mark our 15th anniversary. It will be a year of great significance, highlighted by the introduction of new postage stamps and new coins, symbols of our growing heritage and identity. Most importantly, we will host a coronation event that will celebrate the entirety of our Principality, reaffirming our dedication to inclusivity and unity. I am filled with anticipation for the joy and unity these events will bring to our community.

As we commemorate this Foundation Day, let us renew our unwavering commitment to the principles that have guided us thus far. Let us continue to build a nation that not only survives but thrives on the strength of its unity and the diversity of its people. Together, we will forge a future that honours our past and embraces the promise of tomorrow.

God Bless Kaharagia and all Kaharagians!
